LETTERS TO MAX

Date of publication: February 08, 2021

4c throughout with 8 colour illustrations

The book of the hour for all in need of solace

"How are you?" When Johanna receives a postcard with this seemingly harmless question from her old philosophy teacher Max, all breaks loose: the grief over her mother's death; the anger at the hospital staff who denied her to be close to the dying one. Inspired by further postcards, Johanna begins to face the demons that linger behind her desperation.

In this extraordinary postcard epistolary novel, author and philosopher Thea Dorn talks about the existential topics we, who often cannot find any help in religion anymore and are just as intoxicated as we are overwhelmed by the myriads of technological possibilities, often avoid: coming to terms with life's finiteness, and searching for solace in desolate times.

A touching epistolary novel and an examination of the big questions of our time.

Juli Zeh

A magnificent, perceptive book full of insights that, in the end, leaves the reader hopeful and with an irrepressible zest for life.

Solace is polemic and cultural critique, philosophy and pamphlet all in one - the search for inner poise in the midst of tragedy.

Deutschlandfunk Kultur "Buchkritik"

An exciting, slim, profound and very freedom-loving book.

SWR2 "lesenswert"

Thea Dorn's protagonist is inconsolable. And yet she manages, especially towards the end, to offer comfort with a pleasantly biting wit.

Münchner Merkur

Thea Dorn always manages to write about complex philosophical questions regarding everyday life without imposing answers on her readers.

Nobody is safe from those crucial moments that change everything

What would you forget, if you could?

Johannes looks back on his childhood in East Germany, and the cracks that ran through it: his mother's early death, his father's mysterious disappearance. All his questions remained unanswered, and he now treads carefully on his path through life. He's a melancholic loner, who has settled into a quiet existence. When Johannes finds a letter in an old chest – addressed to his father and sent only a few days before he left his son without a word – the discovery transforms not only his future, but also his past as a child in the GDR before the Wall came down. His memories arrange themselves into a new pattern, and with it his attitude to his own life changes.

With penetrating vigour and forceful clarity, Matthias Jügler tells a story of loss and betrayal, of the value of memory and the urgent questions that are troubling a whole generation. A warm-hearted, radiant novel written with extraordinary linguistic intensity.

Matthias Jügler's deeply felt and beautifully narrated novella is a striking portrait of the tensions and complexities of life in

New Books in German

A masterpiece of concision.

Berliner Zeitung

A profoundly moving story, told vividly and with much empathy.

NDR 1 'Kulturjournal'

A haunting, penetrating exploration of the chasms and disruptions created – then as now – by the injustices of the GDR. [...] A forceful, vibrant and sad story [...].

Die Seitenschneider

The Forsaken is about accepting the truth even if it turns your own past upside down [...]. Its style is dizzyingly intense and compelling.

MDR Kulturmagazin 'artour'

A novel that calmly unfolds its power, and amplifies that power without pageantry. [...] Jügler's coolness is reminiscent of Scandinavian storytellers. Nothing escapes his keen eye for social detail, which means that readers everywhere will connect with the novel [...]. An astonishing and touching novel, without the least hint of Ost propaganda about it.

Mitteldeutsche Zeitung

A riveting novel. Jügler's style is unadorned, yet so intense that it sometimes takes your breath away. He gives voice to a whole generation, and finds words for what, in the GDR, was unspeakable, and about which many East German families remained silent for decades.

Jügler writes sober, pithy sentences [...], which make it an unbelievably good read. Once you've picked up The Forsaken, a ringing phone stands no chance. He reveals the substance of the long shadows cast by the East Germany state [...]. One of the novel's strengths is the way that it leaves the reader room to manoeuvre and think. A brilliant novel.

MDR KULTUR „Lesezeit“

A thoughtful political thriller, ending in a gripping showdown. What makes it so particularly good is that it is moving, yet never maudlin.

NOVEL

Date of publication: April 26, 2021

A compelling novel about the healing power of storytelling

Middle-aged Anoush's life has reached a turning point: her friend Anouk, like herself the daughter of an Iranian father and a German mother, who was like a sister to her when they were children in Teheran, has committed suicide. Time stops for Anoush. It isn't the first time she has lost Anouk, but now she has lost her forever.

Anoush, who cut all ties with her parents in Iran many years ago, retreats into her small house in the Italian region of Marche. Nature and the simple life are what she needs right now – but despite her efforts she's unable to finish the novel she has been working on for a long time now. Then a mysterious woman appears at her door, claiming to have lost her memory. She looks familiar, but Anoush doesn't know why. While the woman – whom Anoush calls Anouk – takes Anoush back into her own past, the novel Anoush is working on helps both women to find themselves again. And Anoush finally manages to reconcile herself with her mother and with life.

A powerfully written novel about the healing power of storytelling, as colourful and artfully woven as an oriental rug.

BY ONE WHO SURVIVED

Date of publication: March 01, 2021

Persecuted, Smuggler, Prisoner, Thief, Sailor, Fighter, Saviour. The story of a hero.

Noah Klieger was 13 when he joined a Jewish underground organisation during the German occupation of Belgium helping to smuggle Jewish children to Switzerland.

Noah Klieger was 16 when he arrived in Auschwitz as prisoner at freezing degrees one morning. Noah Klieger had never before boxed when upon arrival the prisoners were asked if there were boxers among them and he raised his hand. The daily extra ration of soup for the Auschwitz boxing squad let him survive long enough.

Noah Klieger was 20 when the extermination camp was liberated. He survived three death marches and four concentration camps in a time when a single word, a raised hand or a wrong step could decide about life and death. And yet, even in the dark, ice-cold hours, he found hope, he found those who fought the Germans, he found allies who stole potatoes with him, he found a doctor who saved his life, he found cunning and luck in one last loaf of bread.

Takis Würger tells the story of Noah Klieger's life – from his childhood days in 1920s France and his survival of the Nazi concentration camps to his commitment to the founding of Israel. The report of a great hero's life – breathtakingly well

Do we dare to be truly human?

Dora moved to the countryside with her little dog. She desperately needed a change of scenery, more freedom and room to breathe. But Bracken, the small village in Branden-burg, is not quite as idyllic as she thought. There is no furniture in the house yet, the garden resembles a wilderness, and the bus connection to the district town is a joke. But above all, behind the high garden wall there resides a neighbour who, with his shaved head and right-wing slogans, seems to conform to all the prejudices.

Dora has to ask herself what she is looking for: Distance from her boyfriend, who is becoming increa-singly alien to her in his dogged climate activism? Refuge from the inner turmoil that keeps her up at night? Answers to the question of when the world actually got so mixed up? While Dora is trying to keep her thoughts and demons in check, things happen in her vicinity she could not have expected. She encounters people who do not fit into any mould, who fundamentally challenge her ideas and her previous life, and who make her experience something she would never have thought she was looking for.

Grandmother and Granddaughter – and a German century

Isa's marriage is in trouble. Deeply hurt, she flees to Lake Constance. In her suitcase are old letters and diaries belonging to her mysterious grandmother Dora. To take her mind off things, Isa delves into Dora's story: In the 1920s, Dora studied decorative arts at the Folkwangschule, a Bauhaus-style arts academy. There, she developed an intense friendship with two fellow students – the miner's son Frantek and extravagant Maritz – which eventually turned into a love triangle. Years later, Dora married a manager at I.G. Farben, a fact hardly ever mentioned in Isa's family.

More and more questions spring up: What was Isa's grandfather's role in the Second World War, and why was her father sent to a notorious Nazi boarding school? The more Isa digs into her family history, the more she understands Dora, and herself. Ultimately, she is forced to ask what it means to live a responsible life – and faces an important decision.

A moving novel about the difficulty of the war-grandchildren generation to anchor themselves in their own lives and a fascinating search for clues in which the readers meet themselves again and again.

For readers of Christian Berkel, Anne Gesthuysen and Annette Hess.

What's remarkable about the novel is the way that it keeps up the tension across its time shifts, and at the same time interrogates itself and its kind.

An old mountain farm in South Tyrol. A woman battling against nature. A world with its very own rules.

Rosa is a woman like no other in Tiefenthal. During the early 1940s, while the sons of South Tyrol are being consumed by the war, the youngest daughter of the Breitenbergers remains behind on the farm with her father. In the difficult years following her father's death, Rosa is left to fend for herself in this isolated landscape, battling against nature to forge a life.

Two generations later, Rosa's grandson Hannes and his wife Franziska are relying on tourism to keep the farm afloat. But life up here is no picnic. And the problems they face raise an old question: should they stay or leave?

An impressive literary debut.

Shortly before her 40th birthday, Kiki finds out that the man with whom she planned to spend the rest of her life is about to marry someone else. And then her mother asks her to come with her on a visit to Kiki's aunt in the mountains. Kiki only reluctantly agrees. But on a summer's evening by the lake, as the last rays of the sun warm the flat pebbles on the shore and Kiki inhales the scent of ripe raspberries, she begins to understand why her aunt Elsie feels so bound to this place.

At last, Elsie tells her the tragic story of Kurt, the love of her life, whom she met here during the last years of the war. Kiki senses her own attitude to many things in life change – particularly when the charming carpenter Jakob crosses her path...

The sweet scent of strawberries in the summer, and powerful emotions – welcome back to California!

Amanda has spent many happy years with her family on their strawberry farm near Carmel-by-the-Sea. Until her husband Tom died 18 months ago leaving her on her own with her daughter Jane. Jane finds it hard to deal with the loss of her father, and Amanda, too, struggles to go on without her beloved Tom and run the plantation single-handedly.

When her best friend suggests that she joins a bereavement support group, Amanda eventually agrees, in the hope that she'll learn how to deal with her sorrow. However, what she doesn't know is that she'll encounter someone very special there. And then she remembers a promise she once made her husband...

The rough charm of the Scottish Highlands, a picturesque village and passionate love

Colleen Murray has nothing to lose when she leaves Boston behind at the request of her late father to spend a few months in his Scottish birthplace of Kirkby. At first, she barely notices the beauty of the Highlands and the villagers' idiosyncratic charm, but then she meets Alex Fraser, the owner of the romantic local B&B. Not only is the single father just her type, but he also shares her love of horse riding. Will Colleen's journey to her roots finally help her to find her place in the world? Happiness seems to be within reach – until Alex's past catches up with him, and threatens to ruin everything...

The Wind Is Singing Our Song

NOVEL

Date of publication: April 19, 2021

"Meike Werkmeister's stories quite simply make us happy."
 Karla Paul, literature critic at ARD

Toni is a world traveller, at home everywhere and nowhere – until a phone call from her father takes her back to the North Sea. The village of St Peter Ording, with its pretty thatched houses and miles of beach is heaven on earth for many. But Toni has never quite felt at home here, where the wind howls through the streets all year long.

Now, too, her old home doesn't make things easy for her: her parents are becoming more and more eccentric, and everything reminds her of her first true love. While helping out her parents on their holiday farm, Toni realises that she has to grab life by its horns to give it a new direction. And she's not the only one...

Family, love, and the glorious seaside – no one does it better than Meike Werkmeister!

The price of beauty. The art of loving. Welcome at the Bellani's!

Florence, 1469. Cosima Bellani's days as the city's Great Beauty are over. The ageing courtesan's looks are beginning to fade, and she fears for her future. When the young noblewoman Simonetta begs for her help in winning her husband's heart, Cosima has a brilliant idea: she will start a cosmetics business, creating her own products – for the trade in powders and salves, white lead and rouge is flourishing. With her help, Simonetta becomes the most beautiful woman in Florence – who has not only influential Giuliano de Medici, but also the ambitious painter Sandro Botticelli at her feet.

But then a bitter power struggle breaks out in the city, and Cosima and Simonetta are embroiled in intrigue. Soon they're dealing not only in exquisite beauty treatments encased in gilded jars and caskets, but also in secrets...

Downton Abbey on the Baltic – soaked in the atmosphere of the notorious Roaring Twenties

Bernadette von Plesow has had to deal with a lot of things in her life, but the past year has almost broken her. She has been able to protect her glamorous hotel, but not her family: her son Alexander died in a fatal accident, and her sorrow weighs heavily on her, especially because they parted on bad terms. Her daughter Josephine lends her support, but Bernadette finds it hard to dedicate herself body and soul to the hotel. And suddenly there's a man at the door, whom she recognises from an old photograph...

Meanwhile, Bernadette's son Constantin – owner of the disreputable Hotel Astor in Berlin – has his own way of grieving for his brother. He knows that he is to blame for Alexander's death, because the accident was an act of revenge from the head of the Frankfurt underworld. Constantin refuses to let it go, and has come up with an insidious plan to avenge his brother's death – but he's playing with fire...

Fin-de-siècle London, and the fascinating legends and myths surrounding the Thames

London, 1894. Charlotte and Tom have been married for two years, but a cloud hangs over their happiness: they haven't been able to have children yet, and there's much that remains unspoken between them.

An exciting book project about the magical places of London unexpectedly brings the two closer together again. But without suspecting it, Charlotte and Tom find themselves in deadly danger after a body is found on the Thames ...

That is the appeal of a historical novel: to be accompanied into the past in an entertaining way. Susanne Goga walks this tightrope light-footedly, sensitively and linguistically adeptly.

The Alster School – Times of Change

THE TEACHER FROM HAMBURG (VOL. 1)

NOVEL

Date of publication: June 21, 2021

Dark clouds gather and a few young teachers have to decide between conformism and resistance...

Hamburg, 1931: a fresh wind blows through the schools of the Weimar Republic. Once reigned by the cane, students now approach their teachings with head, heart and hand.

Felicitas, who has just started teaching, is passionate about the new ideals of progressive education. And physical education teacher Emil seems to be like-minded, as he is secretly in love with her. Yet, the bourgeois lifestyle he aspires to does not suit Felicitas' urge for freedom.

It is a whole different story with her friend Anneliese, who does everything to win Emil over for herself. While the budding affection between Anneliese and Emil drives a wedge between the two friends, dark clouds appear at the horizon of history: The Nazis seize power and the flag flying the swastika is raised above the schoolyard. Felicitas and her colleagues have to decide: Do they want to serve the Fuhrer in their work? Or stay true to their own ideals?

Dark Room

A BRONSKI CRIME NOVEL (VOL.1)

Date of publication: March 22, 2021

English sample translation available

He only appears where people die. He's closer to death than to anything or anyone else.

Winter in Innsbruck. A homeless man seeks refuge in a long abandoned house in the woods. In the bedroom, he finds a dead body. It has been lying there for twenty years. It's just what the press photographer David Bronski has been waiting for. He and his colleague, the journalist Svenja Spielmann, are tasked with reporting from the scene – but what he won't tell anyone is what connects him to this spectacular case.

Ever since he can remember, Bronski has taken photographs of misfortune. His eye is trained on the darkness in our world. He goes where people die. He immortalises everything that's bad, and is fascinated by the silence of death. It's like an addiction. Bronski is closer to death than to anything or anyone else, and lives only for his secret passion: analogue photography. The dark room is his safe haven – here, he creates his works of art, portraits of dead people. Scarred by a terrible event in his past, this is his attempt to rediscover meaning in life.

The perfect read for your sofa-bound holiday.

IF SHE REMEMBERS, SHE'LL BECOME A MURDERER

THRILLER

Date of publication: April 13, 2021

I can't remember. No one believes me. What if I am a murderer?

Leila experiences her own personal nightmare: she can't remember the night her music producer was killed. Yet, neither her family nor the police believe her when she says that she remembers nothing. All of a sudden, Leila falls out of her normal life. Less and less she is able to separate between what really happened and what is only a product of her own imagination.

With the help of a psychiatrist, Leila tries to get to the bottom of her buried memories. What did she do? The closer the two get to Leila's memories, the more often threatening incidents occur in the acute ward of the psychiatric hospital where Leila is being treated. Coincidence? Or does one of the other patients target Leila? Little by little, Leila discovers connections that frighten her greatly. If she is right, if these nightmares are now part of her memories, then she must protect herself and her life – at all costs...

The Man from Lebanon

Date of publication: March 01, 2021

"A stylish sledgehammer of a book!" Bernhard Aichner

Frank Bosman and his team from the State Criminal Police are conducting a hopeless fight against Arslan Aziz, head of the extended Lebanese family that has cornered the drugs market in Berlin. When the Albanian mafia aggressively tries to push its way in and Arslan's brother Tariq murders a rival, Bosman spots a chance to bring the whole clan to justice. But the arrest ends in bloodshed, and now Bosman's in trouble: not only are Internal Affairs on his case because of the fatal shoot-out, but he has to put up with a young eyewitness who could land him in jail any minute.

As if that wasn't enough, it turns out that his brother-in-law Harry, a dodgy film producer, is caught up in the case. He owes Aziz a large sum of money that he's in no position to pay back...
