Shake it, rock it, blow and knock on it – and see what happens!

What do you do when a cockerel gets a sore throat? Why is it useful to yell rhymes at vultures? And how did the inventor Eddi manage to get his soap-bubble machine going? This fun picture book encourages children from the age of two to get active: they can shake it, rock it, knock on it and blow on the pages, depending on what the little story demands. A book full of surprises – lots of fun, laughs and thrills!

- Little fans have been eagerly anticipating the new interactive book by the bestselling author Nico Sternbaum
- What happens when you shake or twist the book? How does the story change when the child sings or crows?
- A sturdy book – strong board covers with rounded corners, printed on thick paper
- All good things come in threes! The new shake-knock-blow-book for children aged 2+

Volume 1

Little witch – lots of courage: a magical snuffly adventure

Rudolphina Raspberrygrass lives on the super-secret Witch Island – the only one in the world – in the middle of the ocean. She's a witch child from a family of herb witches. But for some reason she can never remember any of the herbs: peppermint becomes tefferpint, rosemary becomes mosefairy. She's much more interested in all the animals in the witchy forest, where she makes friends with the tiny fox Snufflesnore. When she saves him from the wild boar 'Arry Angry, she realises that not only can she understand animals, but she can even read their minds using her magic wand. Snufflesnore thinks it's brilliant. He begins to suspect that in reality, Rudolphina may not be a herb witch at all, but an animal magician...

- Heart-warming and adorable: the little witch girl Rudolphina and her tiny fox friend Snufflesnore
- Great setting: the one and only, super-secret Witch Island with its scented herbs and many sweet animals

The magical adventures of Rudolphina Raspberrygrass make for a cosy read

Rudolphina's twin aunts are having a party for their 125th birthday. But what's that? At the picnic spot, the aunts and witches are snoring away in the middle of the day. As it turns out, they haven't slept a wink in three days, because of the deafening noise coming from Hocus-Pocus Forest during the night. During the next night, too, the island's inhabitants can't get a minute's sleep. When they begin to suspect the squirrel Clatterbang, the tiny fox Snufflesnore knows that Rudolphina is their only hope – after all, she's a real animal magician. And he's right: Rudolphina already knows exactly what to do...

von Giverny

A picture book about Claude Monet's life and work

Ella and her family have moved from the US to a little village near Paris. In the village lives a painter whom her father admires very much: Claude Monet. Ella often watches the artist, who has a funny long beard and always wears a hat, in his garden at Giverny. One day, Monet notices the girl secretly sketching a portrait of him. He encourages her with her art, and tells her about his own beginnings as a painter: 'I didn't want to make things look beautiful – I wanted to paint things as I saw them. I wanted to paint my impression of them.' A beautiful and insightful picture book about Monet's life and finding the courage to create your own pictures, even when they may not look perfect from the start.

Includes an appendix with facts about Claude Monet and impressionism, and photographs of his most famous works.

Volume 29

A risky test for the fire-breathing dragon!

It's the last day of term, and the dragon children are picking their holiday homework out of a hat. Coconut can't believe his eyes when he reads his: 'Abduct a princess.' That's a task normally reserved for senior pupils. But their teacher, Miss Pendrake, says that everything's as it should be. Coconut's belly doesn't like the sound of it, but the little dragon sets off to complete the mission. Just as well that he has Matilda and Oskar to help him...

Little dragon Coconut and his friends' exciting adventures have become true classics of children's literature. Ingo Siegner writes about friendship and courage, and his accompanying illustrations are both delightful and original. The series is a Spiegel bestseller, and as much fun to read as to have read to you.

- A tough task for the little fire-breathing dragon
- A new adventure for the popular children's book character

My adventure comic – reading fun

Mops and Kat are the best of friends. But while Kat is always looking for the next adventure, Mops prefers to lounge around on the sofa. When Kat convinces him to come on a walk in the woods, he's bored – until the friends meet Rocky. The laid-back roebuck takes them on a thrilling voyage of discovery: he shows them how trees communicate, where you can find the tastiest elf cakes, and how beehives are organised. They venture deeper and deeper into the undergrowth and visit mysterious, magical places – but suddenly Rocky realises he's lost! The trees are almost impenetrable now, young boars are running through the woods and a river is blocking their way. What now? Luckily, Beaver has a solution. And so, after much sliding about in the mud, the friends finally find their way back home – cheered and fulfilled by their new woodland experiences and friendships.

My adventure comic – reading fun

Mops and Kat are off to the North Sea, where they will spend a week looking after an old lighthouse. The lighthouse keepers Gundel and Knut teach them all sorts of things about the mud flats and its inhabitants. But also about sunken cities, the mysterious 'mud crackle' and storm surges. Before Knut and Gundel leave the friends to it, they remind them to beware the tides, and never to go out onto the flats alone. Mops and Kat explore the colourful underwater world of the North Sea, and dive down to a shipwreck to hunt for hidden treasure. But soon the sky grows overcast, and when the friends are safely back in the lighthouse they receive an SOS: Cap'n Ahab, the old seagull, reports that there are tourists lost out on the mud flats, and the tide is coming in! It's Mops and Kat to the rescue!

Volume 4

Clear the ring for the master detective!

Circus Licketysplit is in town. But something's not quite right: while Theo, Elsa and Mr Marple are sitting comfortably in Carola's Café, the circus goat sends out an SOS. Of course, the friends want to help the goat in danger. But to find out what's wrong, they have to get inside the circus. And the gang of sleuths knows exactly how to do it: at the weekend, there'll be an interactive show – and since they already have a highly talented hamster among them, Theo and Elsa will of course present a hamster dressage act. But as soon as Mr Marple gets a taste of circus life, there's no stopping him, and he puts himself in grave danger during a daring stunt. There's no sign of the goat, either. Can the gang of sleuths come to its aid?

- Clear the ring for the hamster detective: Mr Marple and his gang of sleuths are on the case at the circus

- "A hilarious crime story." Zeit Leo on Mister Marple and the Gang of Sleuths: Where's Bruno the Sausage Dog?

Thrilling first book in a fantastic new series for children about the magical creatures that secretly live among us

Dancing snow – that’s what magic smells of, for Ella Löwenstein. But that’s not all: she can also see magical beings! Because she is a fairy whisperer. And the creatures of Otherworld need her help...

Fairies, nymphs, dream catchers – Ella knows that they all exist. But even she doesn’t think it’s normal. Because what 10-year-old trips over sleeping trolls on the way to school, or is pursued by a lilac goblin?

And the heathgoblin Kasimir proves to be very persistent. He urgently needs Ella’s help, and takes her along on his dangerous mission into Otherworld. So begins Ella’s singular journey into a magical realm – and it quickly becomes clear that the goblin Kasimir is just the start!

- A young and unconventional heroine and an unusual, magical friend
- Ella’s real world may be colourful – but it’s no match for the fantasy universe!
- Ella’s world is filled with miraculous things and shines in stunning heathland colours

A STORY ABOUT BULLYING

Date of publication: March 08, 2021

10+

A case of bullying at school

11-year-old Ella is a little quieter than her classmates, and her clothes aren't as cool as theirs. She doesn't have a best friend and isn't part of the Year 5 in-crowd. But the harder she tries to make friends, the more her classmates reject and ignore her. When someone uploads a WhatsApp video showing Ella being bullied in the schoolyard, she wants to stop going to school altogether – and disappears without a trace...

- Reveals how bullies operate using the example of a group of Year 5 pupils
- School bullying is an important and topical theme
- Once again, teacher Christine Fehér shows her mastery of school-related topics
- Provides an interesting insight into the behaviour of victims and aggressors
- Told with much realism and empathy

The staff and students are presented realistically, strikingly and vividly, and thus inexorably enter our consciousness. A book that makes you think.

Follow your heart

What does it feel like to be happy or sad? The heart is far more than just a muscle, and it's where all your emotions live. Inside it, there are mysterious caves and valves – it's a place where feelings become real. Sometimes it's quiet as a mouse, sometimes it pounds so hard that you can feel it right in your throat. It's like a good friend, who is always by your side and ready to give you advice. And when you place your hand on the left side of your chest, you can feel it: your heart.

Reinhard Friedl is a cardiovascular surgeon who has operated on many thousands of hearts. He explains why joy resides in your heart, and why you should start listening to your heart from a young age. Because when we learn to listen to our heart, it can make us strong and ready to face what life throws at us.

- A moving, philosophical gift book about our most important sensory organ: the heart
- Why joy lives in your heart and why you should start listening to your heart from a young age
- Key message: the sooner you learn to listen to your heart, the richer and more

All about hair: an illustrated cultural history

What do fringe, ponytail, monkey swing and earphones have in common? Exactly, they are all hairstyles! In her book, printed in unusual colours, Katja Spitzer tells us everything about hair: that hairstyles have been important to people since the Stone Age, from the hip-length hair of Empress Sisi to the tower hairstyles of the Baroque and the punk hairstyles of the 70s. We learn which beauty recipes the Ancient Egyptians used on their hair, to whom Indians sacrifice their hair and why many African Americans wear their Afro-look with great pride, what the bobblehead has to do with emancipation, why our hair turns grey and what it consists of at all. We see plaits, curls, blonde, black, ginger hair, short or long hair, ladies-beard and beard hairstyles and learn many idioms related to hair. Quite hairy, this book!

- All about hair and hairstyles – from the past to now
- Extraordinary illustrations, printed in special colours
- Hairy fascination – from tower hair and monkey swing to Mohican

Small children, big questions

'Why are there different religions?' Children are curious and want to know everything, including the answer to this question, which is a hard one to answer even for adults. If there are Muslim as well as Christian and Jewish children in a class, whose religion is the 'right' one? Is there even such a thing? And does God actually look the same all over the world? Is there only one way to pray? In this new book in the popular 'Children's Questions' series, 16 renowned researchers provide answers to key aspects of the big question of which religion is 'the right one'. A lively and charmingly illustrated book, which provides much food for thought.

- The new book in the popular series
- Simple answers, for a child-friendly conversation

vom Gemüse

An extraordinary book about vegetables: from aubergines to zucchini

This masterful vegetable garden will make even the pickiest eaters curious to find out more about – and taste – what's on their plate. Families may be placing ever greater value on locally sourced and organic nutrition, but in these days of fast food and ready meals, fewer children than ever before know the full story about those vegetables that make their way onto their plates via freezers, tins and jars. This book will change all that!

Olaf Hajek's Book of Vegetables introduces you to seventeen kinds of vegetable. Just as in his successful picture book Olaf Hajek's Book of Flowers, the author enriches his imaginative and lovely vegetable portraits with interesting and informative texts, explaining when, where and how vegetables grow in their natural environment and why eating them is good for you. Children will learn which plant parts are edible – and that cauliflower isn't a flower but a blossom, pumpkins are fruit and the carrot is a root.

Where our climate comes from: a research trip to the heart of the Arctic

It's the biggest polar expedition of our time: the German research icebreaker Polarstern ('Pole Star') is on a year-long journey, drifting through the Arctic Ocean moored to an ice floe. On board are the MOSAiC expedition's more than 600 crew and scientists from over 20 countries. In a race against the impending Polar night, the team sets up a research base in the middle of the sea ice to collect valuable data. The team of international researchers wants to find out how changes in the Arctic are impacting our climate: the polar region is its 'engine room' – what happens here affects the whole planet. And the Earth is warming up more quickly here than anywhere else. But how is it possible to conduct research under such extreme climate conditions, far from civilisation, during months and months of darkness?

Expedition Pole Star tells the story of the people on board, the thrilling expedition of the century and its historical predecessors. It provides key information about how the life and climate of the Arctic came to be, and explains what each of us can

How to become a professional footballer: a book for young players, parents and coaches

What young footballer doesn't dream of a professional career – to play in the Bundesliga against the best, and become the new Messi or Ronaldo? The path to glory, however, requires not only proper discipline, a strong mind and a lot of talent, but also the ability to deal with failure and withstand the constant pressure. And how do you balance school and sports?

Alongside the sports journalist and football consultant Kai Psotta, six experts explain what really awaits young players on their way to a professional career, how things work in the youth programmes of the Bundesliga clubs, and the training methods used by the best coaches. The experts are Manuel Baum (coach of Germany's U21 team), Danny Galm (U17 coach at Hoffenheim), Martin Heck (U21 coach in Cologne), Levent Sürme (U15 coach at RB Leipzig), Gürkan Karahan (head scout in Augsburg) and Holger Seitz (youth sports director at FC Bayern).

- Useful and motivational – for everyone who wants to play the beautiful game for a living!
- A glance into the dressing room: youth coaches and talent scouts explain step by step what being a professional player is really like, how the Bundesliga youth

Dark. Mystical. Mysterious. The big new thriller for all ages from the Spiegel bestselling author Elisabeth Herrmann.

Vardø, a small town deep inside the Arctic Circle. Everyone has been unsettled by the murder of the wealthy Norwegian forest owner Olle Trygg. Including Ravna Persen, who has just landed at the local police station, fresh from training. Things aren't easy for Ravna: she is a complete beginner, a woman, and... a Sami. At the crime scene, nobody takes her seriously when she thinks she's found evidence of Sami involvement in the killing: a line drawn in the soil. When, shortly after, controversial Inspector Rune Thor arrives to take charge of the case, things come to a head. But Ravna has learnt much about the secrets of the Sami from her great-grandmother Léna – and knows that a line in the soil suggests an ancient ritual, meant to prevent the lost souls of the dead from returning to the world of the living. Whoever committed the murder has to know this secret.

- Elisabeth Herrmann's hugely popular thrillers are smart, gripping and atmospheric, and filled with strong heroines and dark, mystic cases. Each novel can be read as a stand-alone.
- A fascinating glimpse of the ice-cold world of northern Norway and the Samis' mystical culture
- "Elisabeth Herrmann is the uncrowned queen of smart, highly charged literary

Herrmann's Sami police officer is a convincing protagonist, and the story both thrilling and fascinating.

Jugendbuchcouch.de

An atmospheric thriller.

OK!

The past, sin and greed are key ingredients of this excellent crime novel, which will keep you riveted from first to last. Highly recommended!

True love stories never end

When Nathalie meets Lucas in the psychiatric hospital, there is an instant chemistry between them. They both feel it, but neither can admit it. Nathalie can't, because she hasn't spoken since her little brother died in an accident – her feelings of guilt are overwhelming. Lucas can't, because he thinks that no one in the world needs him. Only once they start to trust in each other, life and love, do they begin to hope for recovery and a fresh start.

- The touching love story of two wounded souls
- The first YA novel by the bestselling author
- The author's books have sold more than 620,000 copies
- For fans of John Green and Jennifer Niven

An intense and moving book about guilt and despair [...] but also a book about hope and the power of love which never descends into cliché.

Volume 1

Noah & Liv: As far as he's concerned, their chapter is closed.
 But she's determined to rewrite their story.

Journalism student Liv is reeling from her last break-up, and can't believe her luck when she finds a flat-share in oh-so-expensive London. But then she meets the only male flatmate, and her heart skips a beat: Noah is no stranger: he was once her best friend – but abandoned her just when she needed him most. She hasn't seen or heard from him for three years, and barely recognises him. The boy who was once her soulmate has turned into an extremely attractive wild child. Liv sees her chance to take revenge for all the pain Noah caused her: she plans an article for the college paper on how to ensnare a handsome womaniser – with Noah as her test subject. But she hasn't counted on her carefully suppressed true feelings...

- The perfect match for every flatmate – welcome to London's hottest flat-share!
- The first book in the big Soho Love series!
- A thrilling new book for all fans of Mona Kasten, Laura Kneidl and Bianca Iosivoni
- The young author's big fanbase has been itching for the launch of her new trilogy

Volume 2

Matilda & Anthony: She has no time for love. Until he find his way into her heart...

Matilda is sick of love and all its dramas. The psychology student is convinced that no man can be trusted – but fails to convince her flatmate Briony, who has fallen in love with the handsome artist, Anthony. But Matilda realised right away that he's only toying with her best friend. To spare Briony even bigger heartache, she makes a risky deal with Anthony: if he stops giving Briony false hope, Matilda will let him paint her – naked. But Anthony understands her feelings better than she suspects. With every stroke of the paintbrush, he reminds her not only of her long-abandoned dream, but also of the girl she used to be. And suddenly her façade begins to crumble...
